To my wonderful daughter, Madeline, the light of my life,
To my infinitely encouraging husband, J.P.,
and
To my Mother and Father, whose love and support are immeasurable

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This work would not have been possible without the financial support of the National Science Foundation's Dissertation Enhancement Grant, the Vanderbilt University College of Arts and Sciences Social Science Dissertation Fellowship, and the Vanderbilt University Department of Sociology Summer Research Award.

I would like to thank each of the members of my dissertation committee for their guidance and knowledge. I am especially indebted to Dr. Holly J. McCammon, Department of Sociology, Chair of my dissertation committee, who has provided me with endless support and guidance throughout the research and writing process.

Lastly, I would like to thank the members of my family who have supported and encouraged me throughout this research. I would like to thank my parents, whose love and guidance are with me in whatever I pursue. I also wish to thank my loving and supportive husband, J.P., and my wonderful daughter, Madeline, who provide unending inspiration and a solid foundation.
