Harmon Wray Collection Opens at American Baptist College

American Baptist College, T. L. Holcomb Library, is now home to the Harmon Wray collection, thanks to a gift from a prisoner at Riverbend, who was willed Wray's personal collection upon his passing away last year.

The collection offers a unique range of books covering all areas of social justice including philosophy, psychology, religion, southern life and history, African-American life and living, penal life and reform, and inmate rights.

Harmon Wray was a champion for prison reform and upholding the dignity of those who are incarcerated. As a teacher and author, he educated countless numbers of people concerning the myriad problems with our current criminal justice system. As adjunct faculty of Vanderbilt Divinity School, Wray created and coordinated a class at Riverbend Maximum Security Institution, comprised of both Vanderbilt students and inmates. Wray was also a founder of the Restorative Justice Coalition of Tennessee, seeking to transform the current criminal justice system from a system primarily focused on punishment to one which facilitates healing and restoration.

His life and works were highlighted Wednesday, October 22nd at 5:00pm at American Baptist College, T.L. Holcomb Library and added to the permanent collection during an opening ceremony which featured Dr. Forrest Harris, Richard Goode, Janet Wolf, A.-J. Levine, John Egerton, and Andrea Blackman.

American Baptist College is a private college in Nashville, Tennessee that equips students for Christian service and leadership through an interdisciplinary education emphasizing theological studies, social justice leadership and activism.

Classical forms of Christian prayer are being offered DAILY in ALL FAITH CHAPEL at 8:30 a.m., and lasting until not later than 9:00.

ALL ARE WELCOME, regardless of affiliation, denomination, belief, etc. The intent of these practices is TO BRING ONESELF CLOSER TO GOD. As such, they transcend our differences and remind us that God belongs to no one, but we all belong to God.

Centering Prayer (knowing God's presence in silence)
Lectio Divina (knowing God's presence in scripture)
Walking meditation (knowing God's presence in our embodied selves)
